

HUN RETREAT NORTH OF MARNE RIVER CONTINUES. MAY MAKE A STAND SOON

PRISONERS SAY POINT OF DEFENSE SELECTED

MUST WITHDRAW THEIR MEN FROM RIVER OURcq IF STAND IS MADE AT FERE-EN-PAREDENOIS

DISPATCH TELLS OF YANK PROWESS

London, July 22.—American troops have turned the tide of war for the Allies, the Daily Express declares. Indications are that the tide has been turned by America sending, in three months, more than Germany could provide against," the paper said. "In the pocket between Rheims and the Aisne the Germans sought to make General Foch show his hand. It was a gambler's throw which brought the Germans face to face with disaster."

Americans and the French continued their terrific offensive against the German lines on a 100-mile front today. They smashed forward—at some points rapidly—on a comparatively small sector near Chateau-Thierry where heavy forces of German shock slowed the advance.

Americans penetrated the German lines north of Bezu-St. German, 5 miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry, late dispatches from Fred S. Ferguson said. The American advance north of the Marne has been at the rate of one-half a mile an hour. At Crisolles the Americans repulsed heavy counter attacks. Late dispatches confirmed early reports that the enemy had established a defense line on the Ourcq river. His present object is to carry out this maneuver with as little loss to himself as possible. The Marne was crossed at the rear of Vernuil. German artillery fire is feeble.

German shock troops again fruitlessly sacrificed vain efforts to stay the Allied advance today.

The great smash continues over a 100-mile front from Soissons to Main-de-Massiges with the enemy in retreat north of the Marne and east of the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road.

The Germans are heavily counter attacking along the Marne front, but the assault is unsuccessful, it was learned authoritatively in London this afternoon. "French and American forces are experiencing real difficulty in crossing the Marne in the Dormain region as the Germans are shelling the bridges and are using immense quantities of gas, it was said.

German prisoners today declared that the plan is to fall back near Fere-en-Paredenois, 12 miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry, and 15 miles southeast of Soissons. This would indicate the withdrawal from the river Ourcq with the intention of making a stand there. Confirmation was given this by La Liberté of Paris which carried front dispatches this afternoon. It reported that the Germans had withdrawn through Epieps to Beauvarden.

Dispatches from Fred S. Ferguson declared that a French official statement said that in some sectors on the front the Germans abandoned infantry counter attacks for the mere use of artillery to cover the retreat.

"On the whole front our positions were maintained," the French communique said.

The German war office admitted for the first time that the Americans are participating in the offensive, complaining bitterly and indignantly of the use of "black Americans" and French "subject people" against their own highly cultured forces.

Reports of American prowess multiplied as the action continues. American infantry completely wiped out German cavalry sent against them east of Rheims. American light artillery wrecked a number of tanks and dispersed the remainder. The Americans then attacked and drove the Boche beyond the latter's original line.

PERSHING'S REPORT

Washington, July 22.—Fresh successes by the American troops between the Marne and the Aisne were reported by General Pershing today. His communique follows: "Between the Aisne and the Marne the day (Sunday) has brought fresh successes to our troops. With undiminished vigor and spirit they have continued to force the enemy to yield bitterly contested positions. In the fighting of the past few days more than 6,000 prisoners and more than 100 cannons and many trench mortars and machine guns have been taken by our division."

EARLY CALL FOR CLASS NO. 2 IS LIKELY

Exemption Board Records Show There Are But 163 Men In Class 1 Available Now

AUGUST CALLS WILL TAKE 100

The local Exemption board for District No. 1 of Clearfield county in going over their lists preparatory to supplying state draft headquarters with the total number of men available in Class 1 of both the 1917 and 1918 registrations under date of July 20th, found that it is highly probable Class 2 registrants will be summoned for physical examination during September.

According to the official figures there are in Class 1 of 1917 a total of 7 men. Of these 15 are colored and a call for them has already been received for the first week in August. Of the remaining 63 there are 25 being held temporarily for farm work and will be available after harvesting is over and fall work done.

Of the Class of 1918 there are on the list at present 100 men physically sound and qualified for general military service, while 35 are yet to be examined out of which it is expected that 25 will be available for general military service.

Thus it will be seen that there is available for the August calls 163 men. Provost Marshal General Crowder has announced through the war department that 300,000 men will be called into service during August. The ratio for Clearfield county is one man per each thousand called for the country at large which will mean that District No. 1 will be asked to send 100 men during August.

In addition to this 100 there has been an additional or special call of 11 men for Camp Wadsworth, the Exemption Board has fifteen volunteers from the 1918 registrants listed for special induction at once, while they have also issued 10 permits to 21 year olds for voluntary enlistment in the navy and marines.

Thus it will be seen that there will be 128 men in Class 1, including both 1917 and 1918 registrants available for the August calls for 100 men. In addition thereto there will undoubtedly be more chances for specially qualified registrants to volunteer and there will likely also be more of the 1918 registrants volunteer for the Navy and Marines during next month.

AN INVITATION

Almost incredible but The Progress actually went into 1330 homes, stores and offices in Clearfield on Saturday evening, in addition to the large number sold direct from the office. There are still some four or five hundred people in Clearfield who do not subscribe to The Progress. We are making an effort to get a sample copy into each of these homes this evening. Should you receive a copy this evening, obey that impulse, phone in your subscription or come around and tell us to start it.

This of course will mean that the 250 men in Class 2 will soon be called for physical examination as it is highly probable and expected by the Exemption Board that Class 2 will be invaded for men to complete the September calls. As there will be a much smaller percentage of Class 2 men available for general military service it is only reasonable to suppose that the men in Class 3 are due to call for physical examination before many months roll around if the present rate of speed is maintained by the war department in recruiting our army.

CELEBRATION AT BOARDMAN YESTERDAY

Band, Liberty Chorus and fine array of six speakers have part in the program

TRULY A GREAT AFTERNOON

Boardman put across the greatest celebration in its history yesterday on the occasion of a flag raising and general patriotic demonstration. Long before the hour appointed for the speaking and other ceremonies the little mining village was crowded with people from the whole countryside while visitors from the metropolis of the county were much in evidence. The people of Boardman were most enthusiastic in their preparations and the Potts Run Land company gave every assistance in having the program carried out without a hitch. Promptly at three o'clock the parade formed, headed by a band followed by the little girls of the village carrying a beautiful large American flag. Behind this came the service flag of the town, having on it seventeen stars. This flag was carried by the mothers representing these boys who are now over there or in the camps and of whom Boardman is justly proud. Mr. Ralph Barnett of Olanta, home on furlough was the color bearer.

Paid Tribute to Lieut. Col. F. B. Kerr Chairman J. E. Phillips of the county Public Safety committee was invited to act as chairman of the meeting after the parade and in his usual pleasing manner opened the meeting with several selections by the band and Liberty Chorus of Clearfield. Prayer was led by John Boag of Boardman after which Mr. G. W. Newshaw of Ohio, was introduced. Mr. Newshaw was indeed a find in the oratorical line. For a solid half hour he held the outdoor audience to the closest attention and by his wholesome logic and simple English contributed much to the ultimate success of the celebration. Chief Clerk Ban was then called upon and briefly added to the remarks of Mr. Newshaw Mayor Chase of Clearfield then ascended the speakers rostrum and made a regular tiptop old home week address. The Mayor was right in his own country at Boardman and knew he was speaking to old friends.

FERGUSON TELLS OF ADVANCE OF YANK FORCES ON THE TEUTONS

By Fred S. Ferguson

With The American Army In France, July 22.—The Franco-American advance continues everywhere from Soissons east of Chateau-Thierry. Oulchy-le-Chateau has been penetrated, placing the railway and main highway from Chateau-Thierry to Fismes under Allied Control and thus forcing the German retirement from the Marne. American and French infantry are crossing the Marne in great numbers and are heavily reinforced by Allied artillery which apparently is without opposition. French cavalry is operating northeast of Chateau-Thierry far in advance of the infantry. American field guns are firing on the Soissons front while the Franco-American line has been straightened south of that city until practically all of the main highway from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry is now in our possession.

HEAVY NAVAL FIRING IS HEARD OFF COAST OF MASSACHUSETTS

Provincetown, Mass., July 22.—Heavy cannonading was heard off the shore at 11.45 a. m. today. Naval vessels have been off this port hunting German submarines. Provincetown harbor is closed to all ships. Explosions sounding like depth charges were heard shortly after 11.00 a. m. A blaze was seen in the direction of the explosion and it is believed the naval vessels have located a submarine.

Possibly the one which attacked and destroyed the tug Perth Amboy and her barges yesterday.

Launching into a glowing tribute to Lieut. Col. Fred B. Kerr who left home ties and business opportunity to answer his country's call, Mayor Chase drove home the moral responsibility resting on the shoulders of the men of Boardman and pleaded with them to uphold his hand and protect his interests while he is "over there" protecting their interests.

Must Eliminate Slackers Charles O'Neil secretary of the Producers association and representing the fuel administration of the government was the next speaker. Mr. O'Neil is not a stranger to the miners of Boardman and vicinity. He laid before them an array of facts concerning the coal industry and its importance in the winning of the war which will no doubt be a factor in getting increased production in this region. Only one thing marred the enjoyment of the occasion. That was the stated fact that the Boardman district did not contribute their share of increased production in the great work done last week by the miners of Central Pennsylvania. However, this gives signs of being overcome. A miner in the audience was heard to remark "My conscience is clean; I did my part but I know some damn slackers who did not." Right here let us interpose to say to the people of Boardman, hunt out those slackers; make them do their part. There is not room on this earth for a shirker, it does not matter what his occupation is. The speaking program came to a close with an address by Attorney A. Roy Chase, of Clearfield.

Express Bulletin Received Immediately after the address of Mr. Newshaw a Progress bulletin informed the audience of the fact that the American and French forces had crossed the Marne river and were chasing the Germans to the east in hasty retreat. The bulletin also carried several other paragraphs of news direct from the battlefield. At the conclusion of the reading a great shout went up and the enthusiasm of the people was unbounded.

More Coal the Greatest Need Great stress was laid on the importance of increased production and industrial fighting by every speaker. Mr. O'Neil very correctly stated: "We don't want lip service, we don't want cheers, we are not asking now for money we are not going to ask you to buy Liberty Bonds today but what we want is coal, clean coal, coal and more coal."

Honor Mothers of The Boys The beautiful flag raised was the gift of the people of Boardman and the finest flagpole in the county was the contribution of the coal company. The pole is solidly embedded in concrete and will be used to raise another when the boys come marching home and Kaiser Bill is helping console his cousin Nick of Russia. A touching incident was seen when at reference to the mothers who bore the service flag in the parade, every man in the Liberty Chorus reverently bowed his head in respect to them.

The song by Robert Kennard of the chorus was a most pleasing number and was loudly applauded.

NEARLY EVERYBODY BUYS W.S.S. NOW

July 22 is here, but Clearfield has not yet filled its quota for W. S. S. The committees through the cooperation of the citizens have brought about splendid results, but Clearfield needs still more. With additional time, we shall certainly get what we need.

Sixty members are now in the Pershing Thousand Dollar Club. At least twelve W. S. S. societies have been established in large organizations. Street soliciting has brought in over twenty-five hundred dollars and today's work will probably bring in five hundred more. Many of the individual plants have had successful canvasses, and all of them are planning to do so. The Patterson Clay Products Company, the Harrison-Walker Refractories Company, the Clearfield Brick Manufacturing Company at Riverview, the Kurts Print Shop, the Clearfield Machine Shop, and the Banta Refrigerator Company have all reported successful meetings. In addition the Clearfield Textile Co., the Clearfield Sewer Pipe Company and the Clearfield Brick Manufacturing Company at Krebs are holding meetings now. Finally agencies for thrift stamps have been established in practically all the places of business.

AMERICANS KNOW NO COLOR

A report from Berlin today tells of the complaint of the German people that black Americans are on the battle line. Those infamous Hun baby killers really pretend to be offended at having to brush bayonets with a colored man. The Hun will find that an American is an American, whether white, black or yellow. It has been no secret to us that the colored man is in the front ranks shoulder to shoulder with the whites and it will be no secret to Wilhelm and his "cultured" crowd when Bill Johnson and Shorty McCabe approach his trenches extending the point of the bayonet.

EXTREME FOOLISHNESS

Sometimes it appears to us to be nothing short of criminal to publish good news because of the effect it has on those who have not taken the time to study the battle line in Europe and try to realize the immensity of the task confronting Americans. The victory already gained on the south bank of the Marne and which is still progressing is indeed an important one and we do not want to discount it a bit but it is surprising the number of people there are who realize what a small thing it is compared with the victory we must and will win some day and which will be conclusive and final. Many a fool spent more money celebrating over this victory than he gave to the Red Cross. It is a lasting disgrace that thousands of men quit work at Altoona and other points last Friday and Saturday to celebrate the victory. After a man's work is done, we don't care if he yells and parades all night, but that day's work must be done first.

ALL THE NEWS FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

On account of the unusual promptness and completeness of the news service being given by The Progress it has been found that many of our readers are depending upon us for all the news, having cut-out their subscriptions to many of the city dailies, realizing that the war news published therein, while a little more graphic and fuller of detail, reaches here anywhere from four to fourteen hours later than The Progress news, depending on the city in which they are printed. We certainly appreciate this tribute to our efforts and in reciprocation we will endeavor to link up the important news from day to day in such a way that a Progress reader will not miss any thing of major importance. Many people of Clearfield will therefore find in our columns many items they have read in the columns of other papers but which are needed to complete the chain of news.

CONGRATULATIONS

A state report shows that every school district in Clearfield County are now availing themselves of the privilege and duty of medical examination of pupils. Only seventy school districts in the state are so neglectful of the interests of child and nation as to overlook this important matter. It is significant that one of the districts heading the list is a township by the name of Germany. We will not name the county.

It is a fact that many of the young men who have been found physically unfit for the national army would have been made whole and fit had they had the benefit of school medical examination. Hardly a child lives who has not some minor physical defects, which should be immediately corrected by the skill of the practiced and expert physician and surgeon. Many children have poor eyes, clogged nostrils and other small troubles who, never having been able to enjoy their full faculties, do not know that there is anything wrong. Medical examination at the school room reveals these defects and result in a report being made to the parents. We are beginning to see the relation of the health of children to the welfare and needs of the nation.

A SUMMARY OF THE BIG NEWS SINCE YOU RECEIVED YOUR LAST PROGRESS

Here our readers can follow the high spots in the news since Saturday at 3 p. m. These paragraphs are culled from dispatches received at this office under the dates and time mentioned.

SATURDAY 4 P. M.
Well authenticated reports from the Western front say that General von Hindenburg has ordered a general withdrawal of all his troops south of the Marne river. A general retreat of the Hun hordes is inevitable. The retreat was forced by the cutting off of communications between the Aisne and the Marne. This was accomplished by the American and French troops. Back of Soissons the situation has cleared up. The city is untenable, being destroyed and in flames from the heavy cross fire of artillery. The Germans are leaving the city and the allied troops are ready to march in.

SATURDAY 8 P. M.
Large German forces south of the Marne retreating under heavy fighting. Retreat more rapid every hour.

Between the Aisne and the Marne great forces of Hun reserves have been thrown into action but the Yanks and French have stopped every thrust and at the same time made substantial advances of their own lines.

More than 100,000 German reserves thrown into action but unable to stem Allied advance.

The German defeat south of Marne River is described as complete. Paris says it is near a disaster for Huns.

United Press dispatches say. The Allies have within grasp one of really great victories of this great war.

SATURDAY 9 45 P. M.
Berlin admits reverses by putting out the following statement: "The enemy—British—have obtained a footing at Motron in Flanders. We have also withdrawn our troops south of Marne." This statement is admission of the abandonment of positions owing to the terrible smash given them on Mondays initial fighting by the Yanks.

Officially stated from Washington that German mine sunk the San Diego. Mine planted by sub recently operating in Atlantic waters.

Major Theodore Roosevelt, son of Teddy, wounded in France. Not seriously.

Allies penetrate German line on the Aisne-Marne front.

British have made minor gain on several fronts in Flanders.

SATURDAY 10:30 P. M.
At a late hour tonight the Allies continue to roll up against the Huns between the Aisne and the Marne. This dispatch filed by Ferguson who is following the action in the front line. The wire was filed at 4 o'clock our time.

The Americans have reached the great highway between Chateau-Thierry and Soissons 6 miles from Soissons. This will endanger German supply lines.

Prisoners taken by French and British along the Aisne in the last 24 hours total 7,000. In addition 19,000 counted since offensive began 2 days ago.

The Allies are in control of rail roads in the Soissons and Chateau-Thierry sector. They are heavily bombing the Hun front at a distance.

At six o'clock, our time, Paris reports that the south bank of the Marne River is entirely free of Huns. All have been chased east.

Mason, U. P. war expert says: "Hindenburg has met his Waterloo. Foch by following the same tactics as in the battle of the Marne has triumphed."

No longer any doubt of the German defeat.

United Press dispatches say the retreat is general and decisive. The retreat has affected the Soissons-Rheims pocket and Huns who remain there are in jeopardy.

At midnight there came the greatest artillery action of the war. All along the Franco-American front the great guns boomed and thundered. Ferguson says "it seems as though the very guns themselves are proclaiming the victorious charge. At seven o'clock here it was midnight over there."

In the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry sector the Teutons are in a "death trap." They must meet the bayonet of the Yanks and the French to get out. They cannot go back because of the blanket barrage in the rear.

GERMANY MAKES EXCUSE
"Our task on the south bank of the Marne was completed, therefore we withdrew," says an official bulletin at Berlin this evening.

SUNDAY 11:30 P. M.
Franco-American offensive continues this morning, early dispatches say.

German papers declare defeat south of the Marne caused by commanders being unable to force their men to concerted action. Say objective was Paris, thereby admitting complete failure. Germans used 687,000 troops in the action south of the Marne and the Soissons sector. The defeat was caused by tremendous bombardment German position and supply line.

British warships active off Jutland but so far have not encountered the enemy. Bombing planes with fleet have bombed enemy points.

Amsterdam: Closely following German admission of defeat, Count Czernin has started more peace talk by addressing the upper house in Hungary suggesting that the Prime Ministers of Austro-Hungary, Germany and Lloyd George get together on a peace proposal and submit it to a neutral power.

Sailors of San Diego continue to insist that submarine torpedo sunk the cruiser.

British forces in the north are prepared to launch super-offensive as soon as the Franco-Yank drive subsides. Foch expected to hold it up until the Germans make larger shift of their reserves.

SUNDAY 2:30 P. M.
Americans and French troops have crossed the Marne and are pursuing fleeing Germans.

American forces hold Chateau-Thierry highway driving Germans before them.

General Haig reports that the English forces have made very substantial gains in several short drives in Flanders.

American forces have entered Chateau-Thierry after driving Germans before them.

General Haig reports that the English forces have made very substantial gains in several short drives in Flanders.

American forces have entered Chateau-Thierry after driving Germans out.

One American unit completely destroyed three similar German divisions.

American artillery is doing great work in bombarding Chateau-Thierry highway.

German Sub is now operating off Massachusetts coast. Already sunk three barges and a schooner.

Franco-American troops penetrating German line between Aisne and Marne to a depth of two miles and threaten to divide German army. Retreat grows more rapid hourly.

LEHIGH REARRANGES UP-TO-DATE COURSE ADD SNIPBUILDING

Bethlehem, July 22—President H. S. Dinsler, Prof. C. L. Thoinburg and Prof. E. P. McKibben of the faculty of Lehigh University have returned from Washington, D. C., where they had a conference with the committee on education and special training of the war department in regard to the military training recently adopted by Lehigh University.

As a war measure Lehigh University has re-cast its four year course so that, by the elimination of a part of the usual vacations and by intensive work, students are now enabled to gain the University's degrees in engineering and in arts and science in three years. The revised schedules provide for three terms of fourteen weeks each year with shop and other practical instruction for engineering students in summer classes. By this arrangement students having the same amount of training as has regularly been given at Lehigh and with military science and drill in addition, will be graduated a year earlier.

To supply trained men for present demands in ship building and operation and for future demands in ocean transportation and foreign commerce, Lehigh University will inaugurate in September a three-year course in Ship Construction and Marine Transportation. It will have the same entrance requirements and the same basis of mathematics and sciences as the other engineering courses. In the second year this course will present strength of materials, machine design, metallurgy and steam engineering and also economics and business law. The work of the final year will be given under the three divisions of naval architecture, marine engineering and foreign commerce. Naval architecture includes studies in the design and construction of wooden, steel and concrete ships. Under the marine engineering is embraced steam engineering, marine engines and marine steam turbines. To prepare them for international trade, students will be instructed in accounting, banking, foreign exchange and marine insurance. The summer work in this course will be given in ship yards of the Atlantic Coast.

The term at Lehigh will open on September 12.

In Germany cultivation of the carp is extensively practiced. Ponds are carefully stocked and the fish fattened economically as a commercial affair. Estimates of the yield vary from 58 to 11 pounds per acre.

PROCRASTINATION ON OCCASION WILL AVOID MUCH

A good joke on somebody came to light yesterday when the Domestic Relations reporter was nosing thru the dusty archives in the court house and as it serves to emphasize the old saw "You never can tell about a woman," we are going to spring it on you, in order that you may see what the average poor devil is up against when he began to ratchet his wits against the female of the species.

Some time since a divorce action was begun in the Clearfield county courts in which the principals were more or less prominent persons of one of our neighboring towns. The action was begun by the wife who complained regarding the lavish manner in which hubby spent his affections about and over the community of the female portion thereof.

A voluminous sheaf of testimony established the wife's claim beyond all question and the commissioner appointed to hear the testimony and report form of decree, in his report stated there was nothing to do but grant the divorce prayed for. Judge Bell so ordered it. Now for the sob stuff.

Having proceeded that far the injured wife rested and failed to complete the legal separation by lifting the divorce. Enter one Daniel Cupit on his second visitation. After the court had decided both parties were entitled to a second hitch the recalcitrant husband was once more bitten by fair charms and the object of his affections being willing, the usual trip to the Recorder's office was made for a permit to weld the two loving hearts.

When the all important question of the disposal of wife No. 1 came up the second-hand groom ad he said he let a divorce. Under the Pennsylvania statute no chance was taken by anybody but the contractor, parties when a marriage is solemnized, have no right to be divorced. Recorder Chase said he was "from the old school." A trip to the Probate court was made where it was found that while a divorce had been granted many moons ago it had never been lifted and to date there was an embargo of just $106.50 on same.

The intending groom was not only game but had the coin, the proper records were made up, a legal looking document with a big red seal was attached and with that instrument clutched in his hand he beat it across the hall to "show" the Recorder. When convinced the transaction and the document were O. K. the legal permit to wed was issued and the happier but $107.50 poorer near-Benedict departed with his bride to be in search of a minister.

But isn't that like a woman. Her procrastination not only accounted for a great deal of time but cost her erstwhile hubby more than one hundred "iron men" and these are war times, too. Besides she can now get her divorce without the outlay of a dime cent. Well, I swear!

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A B. R. & P. train set fire to the hill on South Side of Anderson Creek Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Handson of Falls Creek, spent Sunday at the home of W. D. Gates.

Paul Harley and family, accompanied by Manuel Harley, spent the day picnicking in a Lumber City grove yesterday.

It will be pretty hard to find an outspoken pro-German in Curwensville after the demonstration of Saturday night.

Miss Lou Hipps, who went to Johnstown last week for a visit, has accepted a clerical position in that city and will remain there for some time.

Hon. A. H. Woodward, Dick Patterson and John A. Dale made the patriotic addresses at the flag raisings at Lumber City and also, at the brick works below the town.

A ball game last Saturday between the Crescents and Lumber City, was played on the home grounds. We failed to secure the score, which will be given later.

Miss Gussie Gardlock, who is filling a clerical position in one of the banks at Olean, N. Y., is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Gardlock, South Side.

Mrs. Eli Bloom, residing out near Naulton, close to the borough line, died yesterday morning after a lingering illness. She is survived by a husband and several children. Obituary later.

Both Curwensville bands were on duty yesterday. The Keystone went to Boardman and furnished music for a flag raising, while the Crescent went to Lumber City and furnished the music for that town.

Motorists who were out yesterday report the woods in awful dusty condition, and in some places so much dust has gathered on the corn, potatoes, etc., in fields alongside the road that it is almost impossible to distinguish of what vegetable plant they belong.

The Bickford brick people are building a handsome and commodious dwelling house on a piece of ground purchased from the Howard Sipes property on Ridge avenue. It will be fitted up with all of the modern improvements.

Sunday was a scorcher of a day but the heat did not prevent a large number of our people from going to Lumber City to assist in a big flag raising demonstration. It was a great epoch in the history of our neighbors up the river, and patriotic sentiments were expressed in addresses made that will long remain in the memory of the people.

Rev. Keboch spent some time in the M. E. Church yesterday explaining some system of organizing Sunday schools into a more universal way of grading the school into classes. It is something new along the lines of conducting Sabbath schools and is a much more easy way of getting the lessons in the limited time allotted to the time for such work.

H. J. B.—In order to answer your question more fully than we are going to do today, would carry us backward to the year 1822. Yes, there was an old-fashioned store building stood on the ground where John Blake now lives. It was built in the early days by a man named England, who afterward sold it and a large acreage of ground to Wm. Irvin and migrated to Ohio where a remnant of the Englands family yet reside. While Wm. Irvin was occupying the house it took fire one night during the winter of 1854 or '55 and burned to the ground. The place then belonged to John Patton, a nephew of Wm. Irvin. The ruins of the old stone building stood until Patton started to build the large and handsome brick when it was torn down and the stone used to build the foundation of the new building. It was argued for a number of years that that certain spot was "haunted" and no one could be hired or paid enough to stay on the ground over night. No one ever openly said that anything was ever seen, but many sounds had been heard at different times emanating from the dead walls of the old house.

Never in the history of the Clearfield Progress has Curwensville passed thru

ALCOHOLISM CAUSE OF DIXON'S DEATH

No indications that George Dixon met death from violence of any kind were discovered when Drs. W. W. Andrews and H. L. Jones carefully examined the body at the inquest here. The skull had not been fractured and showed no marks that would lead to the belief that it had received a heavy blow. The fact was, discolored with congested blood, due likely to the fact that he was lying on his face and had probably died in that position, the ruptured blood vessels causing the discoloration. The heart and lungs were found to be normal. There were, however, seemingly unmistakable symptoms that death was caused by alcoholic poisoning. In addition to the broken blood vessels there were the other usual indications ordinarily present when death results from alcoholism.

At the conclusion of the autopsy the examining physicians made affidavit before Acting Coroner Warfield that in their opinion Dixon's death resulted from alcoholic poisoning. The man had been drinking heavily lately, it was learned at the investigation, which bore out the finding of the physicians and strengthened the theory that their diagnosis was correct. —Philadelphia Journal.

CANNING DEMONSTRATIONS

Misses Lillie Wrigley and Bertha Stage, who attended the special Canning Demonstration course at State College are now ready to give demonstrations anywhere in the county. They will give practical canning and preserving lessons to either large or small assemblies wherever arranged for. One of the best methods for getting results is to arrange small assemblies in the home of some members of the party and there get to work in the good old way in the kitchen.

Demonstrations can be arranged for by communicating with either of the young ladies or with Mrs. Philip Reed, chairman of the Women's Council, Clearfield, Pa.

SNOW SHOE DOCTOR INJURED

Dr. and Mrs. Harris, of Snow Shoe were quite seriously injured yesterday in an automobile wreck which occurred at the foot of Snow Shoe mountain. The car in which they were riding collided with another car in an attempt to pass. Dr. Harris was very seriously hurt about the head and breast.

such exciting times as last Friday and Saturday night. The start of the whole whirlwind might be traced to good news received that victory was at present perching on the Allied banners, and that the Hun had lost several fingers from the hand of his grip. During the Civil war some exciting stunts were pulled off in this village, and the writer can remember of two occurring especially after the war.

A Grant and Colfax flag raising done in the hollow at the McNaull tannery, when the democrats swore that flag should only fly when the road beneath swam with blood. Well, the flag went up just the same and not much blood was spilled either. It caused an excitement in the village just the same. Another time was on an occasion when a small road show came to town and advertised that a man would go up in a balloon. The man failed to go at the time advertised, which did not suit the temper of the country fellows and they went for that show like a rat for a hunk of cheese. The canvass was torn from its fastenings and dragged up the middle of the street as far as the postoffice. The snakes, birds and monkey got out of their cages and there was a great hullabaloo raised. A compromise was finally made between the show people and the crowd, that if the canvass was put back on the grounds the man would go up. This plan was carried out and the man did go into the air several hundred feet and came down in an old field along the river, near where the P. H. & L. tannery is located.

And now along comes Saturday evening's celebration which can rightly be termed patriotic enthusiasm because the news which caused it was of vital importance to every man, woman and child who had a bit of patriotic blood in their veins.

HUN RETREAT NORTH OF MARNE RIVER CONTINUES. MAY MAKE A STAND SOON

PRISONERS SAY POINT OF DEFENSE SELECTED

MUST WITHDRAW THEIR MEN FROM RIVER OURCQ IF STAND IS MADE AT FERE-EN-PAREDENOIS

DISPATCH TELLS OF YANK PROWESS

London, July 22.—American troops have turned the tide of war for the Allies, the Daily Express declares. Indications are that the tide has been turned by America sending, in three months, more than Germany could provide against," the paper said. "In the pocket between Rheims and the Aisne the Germans sought to make General Foch show his hand. It was a gambler's throw which brought the Germans face to face with disaster."

Americans and the French continued their terrific offensive against the German lines on a 100-mile front today. They smashed forward—at some points rapidly—on a comparatively small sector near Chateau-Thierry where heavy forces of German shock slowed the advance.

Americans penetrated the German lines north of Bezu-St. German, 5 miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry, late dispatches from Fred S. Ferguson said. The American advance north of the Marne has been at the rate of one-half a mile an hour. At Crisilles the Americans repulsed heavy counter attacks. Late dispatches confirmed early reports that the enemy had established a defense line on the Ourcq river. His present object is to carry out this maneuver with as little loss to himself as possible. The Marne was crossed at the rear of Vernuil. German artillery fire is feeble.

German shock troops again fruitlessly sacrificed vain efforts to stay the Allied advance today.

The great smash continues over a 100-mile front from Soissons to Main-de-Massiges with the enemy in retreat north of the Marne and east of the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road.

The Germans are heavily counter attacking along the Marne front, but the assault is unsuccessful, it was learned authoritatively in London this afternoon. "French and American forces are experiencing real difficulty in crossing the Marne in the Dormain region as the Germans are shelling the bridges and are using immense quantities of gas, it was said.

German prisoners today declared that the plan is to fall back near Fere-en-Paredenois, 12 miles northeast of Chateau-Thierry, and 15 miles southeast of Soissons. This would indicate the withdrawal from the river Ourcq with the intention of making a stand there. Confirmation was given this by La Liberté of Paris which carried front dispatches this afternoon. It reported that the Germans had withdrawn through Epieps to Beauvarden.

Dispatches from Fred S. Ferguson declared that a French official statement said that in some sectors on the front the Germans abandoned infantry counter attacks for the mere use of artillery to cover the retreat.

"On the whole front our positions were maintained," the French communique said.

The German war office admitted for the first time that the Americans are participating in the offensive, complaining bitterly and indignantly of the use of "black Americans" and French "subject people" against their own highly cultured forces.

Reports of American prowess multiplied as the action continues. American infantry completely wiped out German cavalry sent against them east of Rheims. American light artillery wrecked a number of tanks and dispersed the remainder. The Americans then attacked and drove the Boche beyond the latter's original line.

PERSHING'S REPORT

Washington, July 22.—Fresh successes by the American troops between the Marne and the Aisne were reported by General Pershing today. His communique follows: "Between the Aisne and the Marne the day (Sunday) has brought fresh successes to our troops. With undiminished vigor and spirit they have continued to force the enemy to yield bitterly contested positions. In the fighting of the past few days more than 6,000 prisoners and more than 100 cannons and many trench mortars and machine guns have been taken by our division."

EARLY CALL FOR CLASS NO. 2 IS LIKELY

Exemption Board Records Show There Are But 163 Men In Class 1 Available Now

AUGUST CALLS WILL TAKE 100

The local Exemption board for District No. 1 of Clearfield county in going over their lists preparatory to supplying state draft headquarters with the total number of men available in Class 1 of both the 1917 and 1918 registrations under date of July 20th, found that it is highly probable Class 2 registrants will be summoned for physical examination during September.

According to the official figures there are in Class 1 of 1917 a total of 7 men. Of these 15 are colored and a call for them has already been received for the first week in August. Of the remaining 63 there are 25 being held temporarily for farm work and will be available after harvesting is over and fall work done.

Of the Class of 1918 there are on the list at present 100 men physically sound and qualified for general military service, while 35 are yet to be examined out of which it is expected that 25 will be available for general military service.

Thus it will be seen that there is available for the August calls 163 men. Provost Marshal General Crowder has announced through the war department that 300,000 men will be called into service during August. The ratio for Clearfield county is one man per each thousand called for the country at large which will mean that District No. 1 will be asked to send 100 men during August.

In addition to this 100 there has been an additional or special call of 11 men for Camp Wadsworth, the Exemption Board has fifteen volunteers from the 1918 registrants listed for special induction at once, while they have also issued 10 permits to 21 year olds for voluntary enlistment in the navy and marines.

Thus it will be seen that there will be 128 men in Class 1, including both 1917 and 1918 registrants available for the August calls for 100 men. In addition thereto there will undoubtedly be more chances for

Almost incredible but The Progress actually went into 1330 homes, stores and offices in Clearfield on Saturday evening, in addition to the large number sold direct from the office. specially qualified registrants to volunteer and there will likely also be more of the 1918 registrants volunteer for the Navy and Marines during next month.

This of course will mean that the 250 men in Class 2 will soon be called for physical examination as it is highly probable and expected by the Exemption Board that Class 2 will be invaded for men to complete the September calls. As there will be a much smaller percentage of Class 2 men available for general military service it is only reasonable to suppose that the men in Class 3 are due to call for physical examination before many months roll around if the present rate of speed is maintained by the war department in recruiting our army.

CELEBRATION AT BOARDMAN YESTERDAY

Band, Liberty Chorus and fine array of six speakers have part in the program

TRULY A GREAT AFTERNOON

Boardman put across the greatest celebration in its history yesterday on the occasion of a flag raising and general patriotic demonstration. Long before the hour appointed for the speaking and other ceremonies the little mining village was crowded with people from the whole countryside while visitors from the metropolis of the county were much in evidence. The people of Boardman were most enthusiastic in their preparations and the Potts Run Land company gave every assistance in having the program carried out without a hitch. Promptly at three o'clock the parade formed, headed by a band followed by the little girls of the village carrying a beautiful large American flag. Behind this came the service flag of the town, having on it seventeen stars. This flag was carried by the mothers representing these boys who are now over there or in the camps and of whom Boardman is justly proud. Mr. Ralph Barnett of Olanta, home on furlough was the color bearer.

Paid Tribute to Lieut. Col. F. B. Kerr Chairman J. E. Phillips of the county Public Safety committee was invited to act as chairman of the meeting after the parade and in his usual pleasing manner opened the meeting with several selections by the band and Liberty Chorus of Clearfield. Prayer was led by John Boag of Boardman after which Mr. G. W. Newshaw of Ohio, was introduced. Mr. Newshaw was indeed a find in the oratorical line. For a solid half hour he held the outdoor audience to the closest attention and by his wholesome logic and simple English contributed much to the ultimate success of the celebration. Chief Clerk Ban was then called upon and briefly added to the remarks of Mr. Newshaw Mayor Chase of Clearfield then ascended the speakers rostrum and made a regular tiptop old home week address. The Mayor was right in his own country at Boardman and knew he was speaking to old friends.

FERGUSON TELLS OF ADVANCE OF YANK FORCES ON THE TEUTONS

By Fred S. Ferguson

With The American Army In France, July 22.—The Franco-American advance continues everywhere from Soissons east of Chateau-Thierry. Oulchy-le-Chateau has been penetrated, placing the railway and main highway from Chateau-Thierry to Fismes under Allied Control and thus forcing the German retirement from the Marne. American and French infantry are crossing the Marne in great numbers and are heavily reinforced by Allied artillery which apparently is without opposition. French cavalry is operating northeast of Chateau-Thierry far in advance of the infantry. American field guns are firing on the Soissons front while the Franco-American line has been straightened south of that city until practically all of the main highway from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry is now in our possession.

HEAVY NAVAL FIRING IS HEARD OFF COAST OF MASSACHUSETTS

Provincetown, Mass., July 22.—Heavy cannonading was heard off the shore at 11.45 a. m. today. Naval vessels have been off this port hunting German submarines. Provincetown harbor is closed to all ships. Explosions sounding like depth charges were heard shortly after 11.00 a. m. A blaze was seen in the direction of the explosion and it is believed the naval vessels have located a submarine.

Possibly the one which attacked and destroyed the tug Perth Amboy and her barges yesterday.

Launching into a glowing tribute to Lieut. Col. Fred B. Kerr who left home ties and business opportunity to answer his country's call, Mayor Chase drove home the moral responsibility resting on the shoulders of the men of Boardman and pleaded with them to uphold his hand and protect his interests while he is "over there" protecting their interests.

Must Eliminate Slackers

Charles O'Neil secretary of the Producers association and representing the fuel administration of the government was the next speaker. Mr. O'Neil is not a stranger to the miners of Boardman and vicinity. He laid before them an array of facts concerning the coal industry and its importance in the winning of the war which will no doubt be a factor in getting increased production in this region. Only one thing marred the enjoyment of the occasion. That was the stated fact that the Boardman district did not contribute their share of increased production in the great work done last week by the miners of Central Pennsylvania. However, this gives signs of being overcome. A miner in the audience was heard to remark "My conscience is clean; I did my part but I know some damn slackers who did not." Right here let us interpose to say to the people of Boardman, hunt out those slackers; make them do their part. There is not room on this earth for a shirker, it does not matter what his occupation is. The speaking program came to a close with an address by Attorney A. Roy Chase, of Clearfield.

Express Bulletin Received

Immediately after the address of Mr. Newshaw a Progress bulletin informed the audience of the fact that the American and French forces had crossed the Marne river and were chasing the Germans to the east in hasty retreat. The bulletin also carried several other paragraphs of news direct from the battlefield. At the conclusion of the reading a great shout went up and the enthusiasm of the people was unbounded.

More Coal the Greatest Need

Great stress was laid on the importance of increased production and industrial fighting by every speaker. Mr. O'Neil very correctly stated: "We don't want lip service, we don't want cheers, we are not asking now for money we are not going to ask you to buy Liberty Bonds today but what we want is coal, clean coal, coal and more coal."

Honor Mothers of The Boys

The beautiful flag raised was the gift of the people of Boardman and the finest flagpole in the county was the contribution of the coal company. The pole is solidly embedded in cor-

NEARLY EVERYBODY BUYS W.S.S. NOW

July 22 is here, but Clearfield has not yet filled its quota for W. S. S. The committees through the cooperation of the citizens have brought about splendid results, but Clearfield needs still more. With additional time, we shall certainly get what we need.

Sixty members are now in the Pershing Thousand Dollar Club. At least twelve W. S. S. societies have been established in large organizations. Street soliciting has brought in over twenty-five hundred dollars and today's work will probably bring in five hundred more. Many of the individual plants have had successful canvasses, and all of them are planning to do so. The Patterson Clay Products Company, the Harrison-Walker Refractories Company, the Clearfield Brick Manufacturing Company at Riverview, the Kurts Print Shop, the Clearfield Machine Shop, and the Banta Refrigerator Company have all reported successful meetings. In addition the Clearfield Textile Co., the Clearfield Sewer Pipe Company and the Clearfield Brick Manufacturing Company at Krebs are holding meetings now. Finally agencies for thrift stamps have been established in practically all the places of business.

TICKS FROM THE TICKET

New York, July 22.—Prices varied fractionally from Saturday's close when the stock market opened today. Anaconda was off 3/4 to 67. United States Steel was 3/4 higher, opening at 107 1/2 and Reading was off 1/4 at 88 1/2.

crete and will be used to raise another when the boys come marching home and Kaiser Bill is helping console his cousin Nick of Russia. A touching incident was seen when at reference to the mothers who bore the service flag in the parade, every man in the Liberty Chorus reverently bowed his head in respect to them.

The song by Robert Kennard of the chorus was a most pleasing number and was loudly applauded.

AMERICANS KNOW NO COLOR

A report from Berlin today tells of the complaint of the German people that black Americans are on the battle line. Those infamous Hun baby killers really pretend to be offended at having to brush bayonets with a colored man. The Hun will find that an American is an American, whether white, black or yellow. It has been no secret to us that the colored man is in the front ranks shoulder to shoulder with the whites and it will be no secret to Wilhelm and his "cultured" crowd when Bill Johnson and Shorty McCabe approach his trenches extending the point of the bayonet.

EXTREME FOOLISHNESS

Sometimes it appears to us to be nothing short of criminal to publish good news because of the effect it has on those who have not taken the time to study the battle line in Europe and try to realize the immensity of the task confronting Americans. The victory already gained on the south bank of the Marne and which is still progressing is indeed an important one and we do not want to discount it a bit but it is surprising the number of people there are who realize what a small thing it is compared with the victory we must and will win some day and which will be conclusive and final. Many a fool spent more money celebrating over this victory than he gave to the Red Cross. It is a lasting disgrace that thousands of men quit work at Altoona and other points last Friday and Saturday to celebrate the victory. After a man's work is done, we don't care if he yells and parades all night, but that day's work must be done first.

ALL THE NEWS FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

On account of the unusual promptness and completeness of the news service being given by The Progress it has been found that many of our readers are depending upon us for all the news, having cut-out their subscriptions to many of the city dailies, realizing that the war news published therein, while a little more graphic and fuller of detail, reaches here anywhere from four to fourteen hours later than The Progress news, depending on the city in which they are printed. We certainly appreciate this tribute to our efforts and in reciprocation we will endeavor to link up the important news from day to day in such a way that a Progress reader will not miss any thing of major importance. Many people of Clearfield will therefore find in our columns many items they have read in the columns of other papers but which are needed to complete the chain of news.

CONGRATULATIONS

A state report shows that every school district in Clearfield County are now availing themselves of the privilege and duty of medical examination of pupils. Only seventy school districts in the state are so neglectful of the interests of child and nation as to overlook this important matter. It is significant that one of the districts heading the list is a township by the name of Germany. We will not name the county.

It is a fact that many of the young men who have been found physically unfit for the national army would have been made whole and fit had they had the benefit of school medical examination. Hardly a child lives who has not some minor physical defects, which should be immediately corrected by the skill of the practiced and expert physician and surgeon. Many children have poor eyes, clogged nostrils and other small troubles who, never having been able to enjoy their full faculties, do not know that there is anything wrong. Medical examination at the school room reveals these defects and result in a report being made to the parents. We are beginning to see the relation of the health of children to the welfare and needs of the nation.

A SUMMARY OF THE BIG NEWS SINCE YOU RECEIVED YOUR LAST PROGRESS

Here our readers can follow the high spots in the news since Saturday at 3 p. m. These paragraphs are culled from dispatches received at this office under the dates and time mentioned.

SATURDAY 4 P. M.

Well authenticated reports from the Western front say that General von Hindenburg has ordered a general withdrawal of all his troops south of the Marne river. A general retreat of the Hun hordes is inevitable. The retreat was forced by the cutting off of communications between the Aisne and the Marne. This was accomplished by the American and French troops. Back of Soissons the situation has cleared up. The city is untenable, being destroyed and in flames from the heavy cross fire of artillery. The Germans are leaving the city and the allied troops are ready to march in.

SATURDAY 8 P. M.

Large German forces south of the Marne retreating under heavy fighting. Retreat more rapid every hour.

Between the Aisne and the Marne great forces of Hun reserves have been thrown into action but the Yanks and French have stopped every thrust and at the same time made substantial advances of their own lines.

More than 100,000 German reserves thrown into action but unable to stem Allied advance.

The German defeat south of Marne River is described as complete. Paris says it is near a disaster for Huns.

United Press dispatches say. The Allies have within grasp one of really great victories of this great war.

SATURDAY 9 45 P. M.

Berlin admits reverses by putting out the following statement: "The enemy—British—have obtained a footing at Motron in Flanders. We have also withdrawn our troops south of Marne." This statement is admission of the abandonment of positions owing to the terrible smash given them on Mondays initial fighting by the Yanks.

Officially stated from Washington that German mine sunk the San Diego. Mine planted by sub recently operating in Atlantic waters.

Major Theodore Roosevelt, son of Teddy, wounded in France. Not seriously.

Allies penetrate German line on the Aisne-Marne front.

British have made minor gain on several fronts in Flanders.

SATURDAY 10:30 P. M.

At a late hour tonight the Allies continue to roll up against the Huns between the Aisne and the Marne. This dispatch filed by Ferguson who is following the action in the front line. The wire was filed at 4 o'clock our time.

The Americans have reached the great highway between Chateau-Thierry and Soissons 6 miles from Soissons. This will endanger German supply lines.

Prisoners taken by French and British along the Aisne in the last 24 hours total 7,000. In addition 19,000 counted since offensive began 2 days ago.

The Allies are in control of rail roads in the Soissons and Chateau-Thierry sector. They are heavily bombing the Hun front at a distance.

At six o'clock, our time, Paris reports that the south bank of the Marne River is entirely free of Huns. All have been chased east.

Mason, U. P. war expert says: "Hindenburg has met his Waterloo. Foch by following the same tactics as in the battle of the Marne has triumphed."

No longer any doubt of the German defeat.

United Press dispatches say the retreat is general and decisive. The retreat has affected the Soissons-Rheims pocket and Huns who remain there are in jeopardy.

At midnight there came the greatest artillery action of the war. All along the Franco-American front the great guns boomed and thundered. Ferguson says "it seems as though the very guns themselves are proclaiming the victorious charge. At seven o'clock here it was midnight over there."

In the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry sector the Teutons are in a "death trap." They must meet the bayonet of the Yanks and the French to get out. They cannot go back because of the blanket barrage in the rear.

GERMANY MAKES EXCUSE

"Our task on the south bank of the Marne was completed, therefore we withdrew," says an official bulletin at Berlin this evening.

SUNDAY 11:30 P. M.

Franco-American offensive continues this morning, early dispatches say.

German papers declare defeat south of the Marne caused by commanders being unable to force their men to concerted action. Say objective was Paris, thereby admitting complete failure. Germans used 687,000 troops in the action south of the Marne and the Soissons sector. The defeat was caused by tremendous bombardment German position and supply line.

British warships active off Jutland but so far have not encountered the enemy. Bombing planes with fleet have bombed enemy points.

Amsterdam: Closely following German admission of defeat, Count Czernin has started more peace talk by addressing the upper house in Hungary suggesting that the Prime Ministers of Austro-Hungary, Germany and Lloyd George get together on a peace proposal and submit it to a neutral power.

Sailors of San Diego continue to insist that submarine torpedo sunk the cruiser.

British forces in the north are prepared to launch super-offensive as soon as the Franco-Yank drive subsides. Foch expected to hold it up until the Germans make larger shift of their reserves.

SUNDAY 2:30 P. M.

Americans and French troops have crossed the Marne and are pursuing fleeing Germans.

American forces hold Chateau-Thierry highway driving Germans before them.

General Haig reports that the English forces have made very substantial gains in several short drives in Flanders.

American forces have entered Chateau-Thierry after driving Germans before them.

General Haig reports that the English forces have made very substantial gains in several short drives in Flanders.

American forces have entered Chateau-Thierry after driving Germans out.

One American unit completely destroyed three similar German divisions.

American artillery is doing great work in bombarding Chateau-Thierry highway.

German Sub is now operating off Massachusetts coast. Already sunk three barges and a schooner.

Franco-American troops penetrating German line between Aisne and Marne to a depth of two miles and threaten to divide German army. Retreat grows more rapid hourly.

LEHIGH REARRANGES UP-TO-DATE COURSE ADD SNIPBUILDING

Bethlehem, July 22—President H. S. Dinsler, Prof. C. L. Thoinburg and Prof. E. P. McKibben of the faculty of Lehigh University have returned from Washington, D. C., where they had a conference with the committee on education and special training of the war department in regard to the military training recently adopted by Lehigh University.

As a war measure Lehigh University has re-cast its four year course so that, by the elimination of a part of the usual vacations and by intensive work, students are now enabled to gain the University's degrees in engineering and in arts and science in three years. The revised schedules provide for three terms of fourteen weeks each year with shop and other practical instruction for engineering students in summer classes. By this arrangement students having the same amount of training as has regularly been given at Lehigh and with military science and drill in addition, will be graduated a year earlier.

To supply trained men for present demands in ship building and operation and for future demands in ocean transportation and foreign commerce, Lehigh University will inaugurate in September a three-year course in Ship Construction and Marine Transportation. It will have the same entrance requirements and the same basis of mathematics and sciences as the other engineering courses. In the second year this course will present strength of materials, machine design, metallurgy and steam engineering and also economics and business law. The work of the final year will be given under the three divisions of naval architecture, marine engineering and foreign commerce. Naval architecture includes studies in the design and construction of wooden, steel and concrete ships. Under the marine engineering is embraced steam engineering, marine engines and marine steam turbines. To prepare them for international trade, students will be instructed in accounting, banking, foreign exchange and marine insurance. The summer work in this course will be given in ship yards of the Atlantic Coast.

The term at Lehigh will open on September 12.

In Germany cultivation of the carp is extensively practiced. Ponds are carefully stocked and the fish fattened economically as a commercial affair. Estimates of the yield vary from 58 to 11 pounds per acre.

PROCRASTINATION ON OCCASION WILL AVOID MUCH

A good joke on somebody came to light yesterday when the Domestic Relations reporter was nosing thru the dusty archives in the court house and as it serves to emphasize the old saw "You never can tell about a woman," we are going to spring it on you, in order that you may see what the average poor devil is up against when he began to ratchet his wits against the female of the species.

Some time since a divorce action was begun in the Clearfield county courts in which the principals were more or less prominent persons of one of our neighboring towns. The action was begun by the wife who complained regarding the lavish manner in which hubby spent his affections about and over the community of the female portion thereof.

A voluminous sheaf of testimony established the wife's claim beyond all question and the commissioner appointed to hear the testimony and report form of decree, in his report stated there was nothing to do but grant the divorce prayed for. Judge Bell so ordered it. Now for the sob stuff.

Having proceeded that far the injured wife rested and failed to complete the legal separation by lifting the divorce. Enter one Daniel Cupit on his second visitation. After the court had decided both parties were entitled to a second hitch the recalcitrant husband was once more bitten by fair charms and the object of his affections being willing, the usual trip to the Recorder's office was made for a permit to weld the two loving hearts.

When the all important question of the disposal of wife No. 1 came up the second-hand groom and he were set at a divorce. Under the Pennsylvania statute no chance was taken by anybody but the contractor, parties when a marriage is solemnized, have no control over the Recorder's office, said he, "from Mr. Cupit's trip to the Recorder's office was made where it was found that while a divorce had been granted many moons ago it had never been lifted and to date there was an embargo of just $106.50 on same.

The intending groom was not only game but had the coin, the proper records were made up, a legal looking document with a big red seal was attached and with that instrument clutched in his hand he beat it across the hall to "show" the Recorder. When convinced the transaction and the document were O. K. the legal permit to wed was issued and the happier but $107.50 poorer near-Benedict departed with his bride to be in search of a minister.

But isn't that like a woman. Her procrastination not only accounted for a great deal of time but cost her erstwhile hubby more than one hundred "iron men" and these are war times, too. Besides she can now get her divorce without the outlay of a dime cent. Well, I swear!

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A B. R. & P. train set fire to the hill on South Side of Anderson Creek Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Handson of Falls Creek, spent Sunday at the home of W. D. Gates.

Paul Harley and family, accompanied by Manuel Harley, spent the day picnicking in a Lumber City grove yesterday.

It will be pretty hard to find an outspoken pro-German in Curwensville after the demonstration of Saturday night.

Miss Lou Hipps, who went to Johnstown last week for a visit, has accepted a clerical position in that city and will remain there for some time.

Hon. A. H. Woodward, Dick Patterson and John A. Dale made the patriotic addresses at the flag raisings at Lumber City and also, at the brick works below the town.

A ball game last Saturday between the Crescents and Lumber City, was played on the home grounds. We failed to secure the score, which will be given later.

Miss Gussie Gardlock, who is filling a clerical position in one of the banks at Olean, N. Y., is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Gardlock, South Side.

Mrs. Eli Bloom, residing out near Naulton, close to the borough line, died yesterday morning after a lingering illness. She is survived by a husband and several children. Obituary later.

Both Curwensville bands were on duty yesterday. The Keystone went to Boardman and furnished music for a flag raising, while the Crescent went to Lumber City and furnished the music for that town.

Motorists who were out yesterday report the woods in awful dusty condition, and in some places so much dust has gathered on the corn, potatoes, etc., in fields alongside the road that it is almost impossible to distinguish of what vegetable plant they belong.

The Bickford brick people are building a handsome and commodious dwelling house on a piece of ground purchased from the Howard Sipes property on Ridge avenue. It will be fitted up with all of the modern improvements.

Sunday was a scorcher of a day but the heat did not prevent a large number of our people from going to Lumber City to assist in a big flag raising demonstration. It was a great epoch in the history of our neighbors up the river, and patriotic sentiments were expressed in addresses made that will long remain in the memory of the people.

Rev. Keboch spent some time in the M. E. Church yesterday explaining some system of organizing Sunday schools into a more universal way of grading the school into classes. It is something new along the lines of conducting Sabbath schools and is a much more easy way of getting the lessons in the limited time allotted to the time for such work.

H. J. B.—In order to answer your question more fully than we are going to do today, would carry us backward to the year 1822. Yes, there was an old-fashioned store building stood on the ground where John Blake now lives. It was built in the early days by a man named England, who afterward sold it and a large acreage of ground to Wm. Irvin and migrated to Ohio where a remnant of the Englands family yet reside. While Wm. Irvin was occupying the house it took fire one night during the winter of 1854 or '55 and burned to the ground. The place then belonged to John Patton, a nephew of Wm. Irvin. The ruins of the old stone building stood until Patton started to build the large and handsome brick when it was torn down and the stone used to build the foundation of the new building. It was argued for a number of years that that certain spot was "haunted" and no one could be hired or paid enough to stay on the ground over night. No one ever openly said that anything was ever seen, but many sounds had been heard at different times emanating from the dead walls of the old house.

Never in the history of the United States has Curwensville passed thru

ALCOHOLISM CAUSE OF DIXON'S DEATH

No indications that George Dixon met death from violence of any kind were discovered when Drs. W. W. Andrews and H. L. Jones carefully examined the body at the inquest here. The skull had not been fractured and showed no marks that would lead to the belief that it had received a heavy blow. The fact was, discolored with congested blood, due likely to the fact that he was lying on his face and had probably died in that position, the ruptured blood vessels causing the discoloration. The heart and lungs were found to be normal. There were, however, seemingly unmistakable symptoms that death was caused by alcoholic poisoning. In addition to the broken blood vessels there were the other usual indications ordinarily present when death results from alcoholism.

At the conclusion of the autopsy the examining physicians made affidavit before Acting Coroner Warfield that in their opinion Dixon's death resulted from alcoholic poisoning. The man had been drinking heavily lately, it was learned at the investigation, which bore out the finding of the physicians and strengthened the theory that their diagnosis was correct.—Philsburg Journal.

CANNING DEMONSTRATIONS

Misses Lillie Wrigley and Bertha Stage, who attended the special Canning Demonstration course at State College are now ready to give demonstrations anywhere in the county. They will give practical canning and preserving lessons to either large or small assemblies wherever arranged for. One of the best methods for getting results is to arrange small assemblies in the home of some members of the party and there get to work in the good old way in the kitchen.

Demonstrations can be arranged for by communicating with either of the young ladies or with Mrs. Philip Reed, chairman of the Women's Council, Clearfield, Pa.

SNOW SHOE DOCTOR INJURED

Dr. and Mrs. Harris, of Snow Shoe were quite seriously injured yesterday in an automobile wreck which occurred at the foot of Snow Shoe mountain. The car in which they were riding collided with another car in an attempt to pass. Dr. Harris was very seriously hurt about the head and breast.

such exciting times as last Friday and Saturday night. The start of the whole whirlwind might be traced to good news received that victory was at present perching on the Allied banners, and that the Hun had lost several fingers from the hand of his grip. During the Civil war some exciting stunts were pulled off in this village, and the writer can remember of two occurring especially after the war.

A Grant and Colfax flag raising done in the hollow at the McNaull tannery, when the democrats swore that flag should only fly when the road beneath swam with blood. Well, the flag went up just the same and not much blood was spilled either. It caused an excitement in the village just the same. Another time was on an occasion when a small road show came to town and advertised that a man would go up in a balloon. The man failed to go at the time advertised, which did not suit the temper of the country fellows and they went for that show like a rat for a hunk of cheese. The canvass was torn from its fastenings and dragged up the middle of the street as far as the postoffice. The snakes, birds and monkey got out of their cages and there was a great hullabaloo raised. A compromise was finally made between the show people and the crowd, that if the canvass was put back on the grounds the man would go up. This plan was carried out and the man did go into the air several hundred feet and came down in an old field along the river, near where the P. H. & L. tannery is located.

And now along comes Saturday evening's celebration which can rightly be termed patriotic enthusiasm because the news which caused it was of vital importance to every man, woman and child who had a bit of patriotic blood in their veins.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Old Hilary Kingston, a Socialist, writes into a village of Woffingham a hand-drawn, decorated, and signed letter to the editor of the local paper, in which he accuses the church of being a "den of thieves and a school of sinners." His motherless daughter, Elinor, is too young to understand the meaning of the letter, but she is too old to be a law and no Christ.

CHAPTER II—In an attack on the Ag. bank messenger, old Hilary is killed, but is not suspected of complicity. Elinor brings the body home to the house.

CHAPTER III—Ward, assistant rector of St. Jude's, makes a call of condolence on Elinor, who consents to have her father's body buried in the churchyard. The chief of police recognizes Elinor and is suspicious.

CHAPTER IV—After the funeral the band meet at the hall and agree to go on to the country club. Elinor, who is not invited, goes to the club and asks Elinor to marry him. Elinor, though she does not love him, Elinor is arrested and threatened.

CHAPTER V—Elinor is in jail. Talbot, a man from the country club, is arrested. Elinor is released and goes to the country club. Elinor is arrested and threatened.

CHAPTER VI.

He must have the urgency of Elinor's position become that the band met at the hall on Thursday of the week after the country-club affair. Elinor was to get his instructions; Elinor wished to discuss his prospect. After dinner, the night being warm they had their coffee on the terrace. A summer storm had come up. All at once a flash threatened Saint Jude's.

Elinor leaped to his feet. "I've got it!" he said. "What is it?" "The big building back of the church."

None of the men knew. It was, as a matter of fact, the parish house. Elinor, however, knew its function. "Fine prospect that!" he drawled. "That's where the Sunday school is held, and where they keep the plated knives and forks for the church suppers."

"It's a damned fine building," said Elinor. "What would they do if it burned down?"

"They were too unfamiliar with church affairs to hazard a guess. Elinor, who had been sitting silent, suddenly voted an objection to Elinor's unimpaired plan.

"There must be some other way," she said. "The children—they have sewing classes and entertainments for the children there. It's the parish house."

"Lightning struck the parish house tonight," Huff said quite eagerly. "This is Thursday. By Sunday morning they would be taking up a whack for the collection to rebuild it."

The idea had taken hold of his imagination. Even the suggestion that a large part of the offertory might be in checks mattered not. But Elinor was obstinate.

"You can do it some place else," she said. "Not here. They struggled very hard to build the church and they need money now. Mr. Ward told me."

Huff turned on her jealously. "Ward—that's the preacher chap?"

"He is the assistant rector," Elinor replied with dignity.

"He's been coming here, then?"

"Twice. Once when father died, and once to warn me against all of you. Not that she had forgotten that few sinners in the garden, under the moon; but that had been an accident—hardly a sin."

Talbot chuckled. But Huff was changing hard. Elinor had been different lately, a little softer. Ward represented all that the men Elinor knew who were not law to their violence, order to their disorder. There was almost a softness in his voice.

"It'd better stay down in his valley with the old women," he said, "and leave you alone. You don't need him."

"I'm not so sure of that," Elinor replied quietly, and left him staring. Huff burned the parish house the next night. He did it himself, without the assistance of the band. Into it he put not only the devilish ingenuity of his experience, but his new hatred of Ward.

Church property is always easy to burn. It was the work of five minutes to crawl through a basement window and of half an hour to make his preparations.

He looked at his watch when he had finished. It was just midnight. In two hours, or before the fire began he would be back in the city, establishing his alibi.

The fire-whistles in the village awakened Elinor at something after three o'clock. All of her room was filled with the red glare of the burning parish house. Old Henrietta knocked at her door.

"The church is burning down in the valley," she called. "It's a grand sight."

Elinor was throwing on her clothing. She must see Ward. She would sell her pearls. She would build a new parish house. She said this over and over to herself as she struggled down the hill.

A new parish house, better than the old, with plenty of room for the children to play in! At least it was night, and the children safe in their beds; thank God for that! She was too disturbed to notice that she had thanked God in whom she did not believe.

The fire had gained too much headway to be checked. All the efforts of the volunteer department and the small fire engine directed toward saving the church, for a time it seemed as if Saint Jude's must go.

Elinor watched the destruction. It seemed as though a hand had fastened itself around her chest. Then she saw Ward. He was on the ridge-pole of the church roof with a hatchet. The ridge-pole was burning slowly. She could see him chopping.

From that time she never took her eyes away from him. Other men were there. She did not see them. She saw only Ward battling on the ridge-pole, and high above on the steeple the sturdy cross of his faith.

Once the men on the street below turned the full force of the hose on him. She saw him reel, saw him recover himself by a miracle.

The fire glared died into the dawn. Saint Jude's was saved. Behind it in its park the charred skeleton of the parish house showed how thoroughly young Huff had done his work. Not until Ward had descended safely to the street did Elinor relax.

Ward found her sitting in one of the chairs along the pavement, her hair still in its long braid, her feet thrust into slippers, her eyes red from long staring.

The fire engine was being dragged away. The crowd had dispersed. Ward, blackened and depressed, was surveying the ruins with a heavy heart. He turned and saw the girl.

Just at first he was not sure of her. He was always seeing her, mentally. Then he went toward her, his hand out.

"You see," he said, "what an hour may bring forth!" And then, "You reckless child, here in slippers!"

"I saw you on the roof," said Elinor, barely able to articulate. "Once I thought you had fallen."

"They nearly got me. It's rather sad, isn't it?" He stood, bareheaded in the cool dawn, and surveyed the ruin. People meet great crises simply.

She tried to find some word of sympathy to say, but what was there, poor child? She knew the true inwardness of that disastrous night. So, with pathetic eyes, she turned away.

"I'll go home now," she said. "I saw the glare—I—!" Quite suddenly her lips trembled. "I should like to help you with the new building."

"Fine," said Ward heartily. "We'll get to that before long."

"If you had fallen—"

"He was not listening. It came to her then how far apart they were. To her his falling would have been an end of all things; to him, it would have meant the beginning of a useful eternity.

"If you wait a little, I'll run around and get my car and take you up."

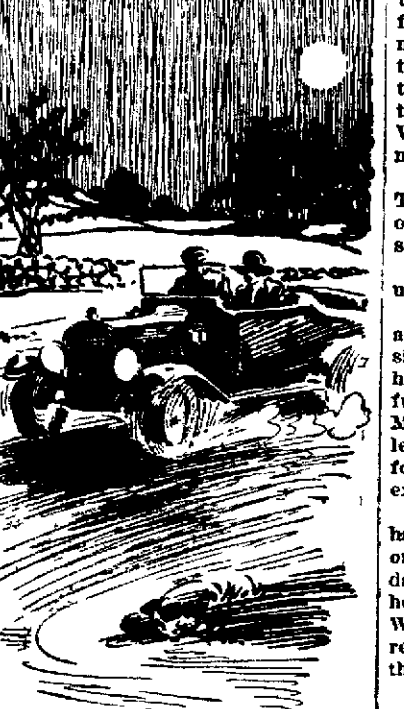

She sat down again, obediently. She was glad to be with him a little longer. Until recently, the work of the band had always seemed a vague abstraction. Now one of its results lay before her. And there were other things fresh in her mind—old Hilary, dead of his revolt against law, and lying in state before an altar erected to a God he had not recognized. And Ward, watching her windows and thinking her the embodiment of what a woman should be.

Over her bitterness rose a hot wave of anger against Walter Huff. She had forbidden this thing and he had done it.

CHAPTER VII.

Ward brought her a cup of coffee, and stood by with satisfaction while she drank it. In his eyes there was a mixture of depression and joy. The parish house was gone, and this girl before him was to marry another man. But they would build another parish house, and who knew—

He drove her up the hill in his small car. At the top of a rise he stopped the car and looked back. The night's devastation showed clearly, a black wound in the smiling heart of the valley.

Elinor watched him. "It means a great deal to you doesn't it?"

"It's rather a queer— Of course we will build again, but there are things that could not be replaced. That isn't what troubles me. The fact is, I am afraid I'm responsible.

"I was there last night, alone. I have a bad habit, when I have a mental problem to worry out, of walking up and down a room and lighting one cigarette after another. I am reckless with matches."

Then perhaps, after all, Walter had not done it!

The car climbed slowly. Ward kept his eyes straight ahead. Elinor cast little shy glances at his profile.

"You said you had something to worry out?"

He drew a long breath. "I have had an offer to go to New York to a big church. It's rather a wonderful opportunity."

Elinor made no sign except to clutch her hands as they lay clasped in her lap.

"Then you will be leaving—us?"

"No," he said. "I shall not be leaving you."

"You like it here?"

"Very much." He turned and looked down at her. It was unwise. He realized that at once. So frail she looked, so softly, tenderly feminine! And because he knew that, after the night, he had not yet got control over himself, the merest hand-clasp as she got out of the machine was all he dared. But at the top of the steps Elinor turned.

"You will never know just how sorry I am," she said, and went through her garden to the house.

From that Friday morning until the evening of the following day Elinor was quite alone.

Hour after hour she spent pacing the terrace, looking down into the valley. On Friday night, unable to sleep, she threw a negligee over her shoulders and went down to her garden. The village slept quietly, but there was a light in Ward's small window near the church. She remained on the terrace until the light was extinguished.

At dinner that Saturday Borodoy's empty place cast a gloom over the meal. Walter Huff came a little late. Under the ease of his greeting there was a touch of uneasiness as he met Elinor's eyes. When the servants left the room, Talbot leaned forward to Walter.

"Now tell us about it," he said. Huff was frankly triumphant, but he still avoided Elinor's eyes.

"It's working out exactly as I knew it would," he explained. "Having once had a parish house they cannot do without it. The vestry carried only about a third enough insurance. And there's another point in our favor—the rector's away. He's got rheumatism. They are going to take up an additional purse to send him to Baden-Baden."

"When?"

"Tomorrow morning. And tomorrow being Sunday, the assistant rector, Elinor's friend, will have it in charge until Monday morning."

"I shall warn him," said Elinor suddenly.

There was silence for a moment. Talbot smiled. Lethbridge looked astounded. Huff, bending forward with his arms out before him on the table, confronted Elinor squarely.

"That's it, is it?" he said. "I asked you not to do—that you have done. The children need it all the time. They played basketball there. Besides, my wish should mean something to you."

Huff shrugged his shoulders. "If I had burned a tenement full of people—"

"A man was nearly killed. He was on the ridge-pole of the church and they turned the full strength of the water on him. I saw it. I—almost fainted."

"You saw it?"

"I was there," said Elinor quietly. Huff rose angrily.

"You were there! And who was it who almost fell off the roof? Your parson, I suppose."

Talbot silenced the boy. It was Lethbridge who took up the argument. He understood her position and sympathized, he said. The fire was a mistake. But now that it was done—

He spoke of Borodoy's critical condition, of their safety that depended on his and finding her attitude to be unyielding, took refuge in her father's memory.

"If anything comes out, it will all come out," he reminded her. "It seems to me, Elinor, that you owe it to your father not to interfere. This isn't a new plan. Four or five years ago when the parish house was first built we talked it over here. And it isn't as though we mean to hurt this fellow Ward. It will be three to one; he'll make no resistance."

"Yes," she said. "Three to one. That is the way weight. Oh, I'm one of you, I know that—but it sickens me, sometimes."

The men were astounded, frankly uncomfortable. The conference got nowhere. Elinor acknowledged their duty to the Russian, offered all her jewels, in fact, for his defense. But she stubbornly refused to countenance the attack on Mr. Ward. Huff lapsed into sullen silence, his eyes on her. The other men found every argument met by silence, except for one passionate outburst.

CHESTER HILL BOY DIED OF WOUNDS

John A. Dennis, of Chester Hill, who enlisted in the regular army at Philipsburg one year ago today, was severely wounded June 14 and died a few days later in a French hospital. Through some oversight his parents were not apprised of the sad fact until Saturday morning.

Dr. David Dale, writing from France under date of June 22, and whose letter was printed in last week's Bellefonte Watchman refers to an incident that in all likelihood is associated with the sad news when reached the Dennis family Saturday morning. The paragraph of the letter in question follows:

"We have a small American cemetery just alongside of the French one where we bury our dead. The other day one of the boys, I think his name was Dennis, was looking over the names posted on the crosses and there he found his mother's name. He had died here in our hospital. This boy knew his brother was in one of the regiments that was up on the line, but it was a queer coincidence that he should find his grave."

Daniel M. Ross, a former business man of Woodland, died at his late home at Ambridge last evening. Mr. Ross was born at Boliver, Pa., and came to Woodland in the year 1873 where he engaged in the mercantile business with his late brother, Grant, now of the firm of Ross & Woods, of Clearfield. His life in business, society and church was a model of what a true Christian life should be. At Woodland where he was known by young and old alike there is not one but who will recall a helping hand, a charity extended in time of need, by Dan Ross, as he was familiarly known. Generous to a fault, he never accumulated a great store of this world's goods, though he had ample opportunity, but rather preferred to lay up a fortune above with the great Ruler who giveth all. A consistent and devout member of the Methodist church, his sustaining and helpful hand guided and shaped the building up and growth of the Methodist denomination in Woodland and that community. CHAUTAUQUA OPENS TOMORROW

The Chautauqua program for this year is a highly commendable one from every angle and those who have not purchased their season tickets are indeed missing a rare treat at a nominal figure although they can still buy single admission tickets at the gate. We might remind those who hold season tickets as well as those who will buy performance tickets that the war tax will be collected at the gate. Have your c'ange ready.

The performances start tomorrow afternoon with a lecture by the Chautauqua superintendent and a concert by The Kerry Singers. The admission fee is thirty-five cents to those not holding season tickets and the performance starts at 2:30 sharp. In the evening comes the real big concert by The Kerry Singers and a lecture by Dr. Carolyn E. Geisel. The title of the lecture is "Miss Columbia M. D." Dr. Geisel needs no introduction to Clearfield people. Her lecture last year made her many admirers and was one of the high spots of that year. The admission to the evening session is fifty cents.

On Wednesday afternoon there will be another lecture and a concert by the Conrad company of musicians, cartoonists, artists and entertainers. The admission is thirty-five cents. The Conrad company will again perform in the evening and Charles H. Lovejoy will talk on "Children in Wartime." The price of admission is fifty cents.

Among the great things in store for the balance of the week are Judge Kavanaugh of Chicago here on Friday. A clean sparkling comedy on Thursday. Saturday the Berkeley Sextette and Monday evening a great war lecture by Captain Vickers of the Royal Scotch Fusiliers.
